The David School

Education Changes Lives

EXAM TEACHING IN FULL SWING

In the last Messenger, we reported that the Sierra Leone government had suspended school public exams, but this has now changed. Thankfully, Covid 19 doesn't appear to have spread widely in West Africa, and it seems that there have been less than 2000 cases in Sierra Leone and under 100 deaths. Therefore, although the David School is not open at present for all pupils, classes for those taking exams started on 1st July. Masks are worn in class, hands washed before entering the classroom, and the children spread out as much as possible.

The NPSE exams for the primary pupils will take place this month, and the BECE for secondary children at the end of August.

The government's School Supervisor has visited the school, and was very impressed with the arrangements and work being done.

Your continued help is very much appreciated.

Many thanks to all of you who have signed up to Easy Fundraising and Amazon Smile and have raised £239 through your online shopping. £40 has also been collected from recycling printer cartridges, so please continue to save these. Thanks also to everyone who sponsors the school and makes donations.

Bars of soap are needed, so please collect this until arrangements can be made to ship it out.

Teachers' Babies
